
Dalla Vihuela alla Chitarra Barocca

FROM THE VIHUELA TO THE BAROQUE GUITAR

PEDRO ALCÁCER DORIA
MATTEO RABOLINI

A journey through an era when music knew no borders and melodies, instruments and rhythms travelled between courts, cities and territories, giving life to a continuous encounter between cultures. The journey starts with the vihuela de mano, the instrument that more than any other represents the Siglo de Oro of Spanish musical culture. In the hands of musicians such as Luís de Milán, Alonso Mudarra and Diego Pisador, the vihuela reached an extraordinary expressive capacity, transforming into an instrument capable of encapsulating within its strings the complexity of vocal polyphony and, at the same time, the delicacy of poetry. The vihuela repertoire constitutes one of the most precious treasures of the Iberian Renaissance. The seven main collections published between 1536 and 1576 recount a highly refined musical civilization, in which fantasy, improvisation and instrumental practice were an integral part of the musical experience. Alongside the vihuela, the program leads towards Italy and towards the baroque guitar, the instrument that at the beginning of the seventeenth century progressively began to replace the vihuela, bringing with it a new language made of rhythms, harmonies and virtuosity. Historical percussion completes this sonic universe, bringing the dimension of dance, rhythm and improvisation to the forefront. The dialogue between Spain and Italy is at the center of the entire project. Already in the sixteenth century, musicians and repertoires continually crossed the Mediterranean and European courts. The Calata alla Spagnola by Joan Ambrosio Dalza, published in Venice in 1508, is an emblematic testimony of this: an Italian music that looks to Spain and a Spain that, through music, enters deeply into Italian culture. Vihuela, baroque guitar and percussion thus meet in a concert that restores to the public not only the music of the past, but its most vivid and surprising character. Because what has come down to us is only a part of what was actually meant to be played. Much music was not written down: it was improvised, ornamented, transformed and handed down by ear. And it is precisely in this space between what is written and what we can still imagine that the fascination of this project is born: a new listening to an ancient world, made of strings, skins, voices, dances and improvisation.

PROGRAMME

✿ VIHUELA ✿

RICERCAR 3	Francesco da Milano (Intabulatura de lauto, Venice 1546)
FANTASIA PARA DESENVOLVER LAS MANOS	Alonso de Mudarra (Sevilla 1546)
VACAS	Luis de Narvaez (Los seis libros del Delfin, Valladolid 1538)
RICERCAR 3	Marco dall'Aquila (Intabulatura de lauto, Venice 1546)
ROMANESCA	Alonso de Mudarra
MILLE REGEZ	Luis de Narvaez (Valladolid 1538)
FANTASIA 7	Luis de Narvaez (Valladolid 1538)
PAVANA 4	Luís Milán (El maestro, Valencia 1536)
FANTASIA 8	Alonso de Mudarra (Sevilla 1546)
POR OTRA PARTE/ROMANESCA	Luis de Narvaez (Valladolid 1538)
BAXA DE CONTRAPUNTO	Luis de Narvaez (Valladolid 1538)

✿ CHITARRA (BAROQUE GUITAR) ✿

PRELUDIO, ALLEMANDA, GIGA E BURLESCA	Santiago de Murcia (Passacalles y obras ca.1730)
PASACALLE SOBRE LA D	Gaspar Sanz (Instrucción para sonar la guitarra, Zaragoza 1674)
MARIONAS	Santiago de Murcia (Codice Saldivar ca.1730)
FOLIAS ESPAÑOLAS	Santiago de Murcia (Codice Saldivar ca.1730)

PEDRO ALCÀCER

Renaissance Lute & Baroque Guitar

Born in 1982 in Mexico City, he began his musical education early under the influence of his father, the Catalan jazz musician Francesc Alcàcer, and grew up in a creative family. He studied jazz guitar with Francisco Lelo de la Rea and soon began learning classical guitar and composition with Héctor Ramos. He completed his classical guitar studies at the renowned "Escuela Nacional de Música-UNAM" and continued with prominent teachers such as Isabelle Villei, Eloy Cruz and Antonio Corona, specializing in the Renaissance and Baroque repertoire. In 2006 he moved to Barcelona, Spain, where he obtained his professional title for Renaissance and Baroque string instruments at the Girona Conservatory with the renowned teacher Xavier Diaz-Latorre. He then continued his studies at the Hochschule für Künste in Bremen, where he studied lute with Joachim Held and Lee Santana and obtained his diploma. As a passionate musician, he continued his instrumental perfection with Evangelina Mascardi in Italy, working intensely as a soloist and continuo player. He has collaborated with important conductors such as Gabriel Garrido, Alessandro di Marchi, Marco Mencoboni, Paolo Faldi, Riccardo Doni, Horacio Franco, Cristoph Hammer, Carlos Aranzay, Gerhard Oppel, Burak Özdemir and others, performing in prestigious festivals and forums in Italy, Germany, Spain, France, Czech Republic, Belgium, Netherlands, Brazil and Mexico. He currently lives in Berlin and collaborates with various early music ensembles in Europe. The artist is

MATTEO RABOLINI

Percussion

Specialized in Historical Percussion and Baroque Timpani, born in Genoa on 30/08/1980, he graduated with top marks in Percussion Instruments at the Paganini Conservatory of Genoa with a thesis on Historical Percussion. Since 2006 he has dedicated himself to the study of early music and applied percussion, attending courses and masterclasses with important teachers including Pedro Estevan. He has collaborated, among others, with: Holland Baroque, Bremer Baroque Orchestra, L'Arpeggiata, Les Talens Lyriques, I Talenti Vulcanici, Arte dei Suonatori, Orkiestra Historyczna, La Risonanza, Modo Antiquo, Accademia Degli Astrusi, Wrocław Baroque Orchestra, Academia Montis Regalis, Teatro Carlo Felice, Orchestra Sinfonica G. Verdi of Milan, Symphony Orchestra of Sanremo and others. He has performed in important festivals such as: Handel Festival of Halle, MiTo, Bremen Music Festival, Bach Festival of Leipzig, etc. He has recorded, among others, for Warner, Sony Classical, Dynamic, Tactus and Pentatone. Since 2003 he has also been active as a teacher, holding lessons in music schools and masterclasses. As a collector he owns more than 400 instruments (mainly percussion), ancient and modern, from all over the world.

